Harry the Historian studies people through history.

When I grow up I could be an archaeologist, a historian, a teacher, a museum curator, a researcher, a tv star, a conservator and a tour guide!

At Sea View Primary, we learn about how famous people throughout history have changed the world we live in.
We look at our local community, incredible explorers, the blitz in South Shields and the fight for women's rights.
Children will learn about continuity and change and how their rights came about.

Harry the Historian studies civilisations through history.

When I grow up I could be an archaeologist, a historian, a teacher, a museum curator, a researcher, a tv star, a conservator and a tour guide!

At Sea View Primary, we learn about how civilisations around the world have shaped history. We look at the ancient world all the way through to the present day, gaining a chronological understanding. We will explore discovery, continuity change and the differences each civilisation made to the world we live in. Children make a comparison to modern day life, drawing connections to what they see around them.
